Kelburne in Hyacinth Time. The policies of Kelburne in the spring are, in many places, blue with sheets of wild hyacinths. From the part of the wood here given, a distant view of Largs and the River Clyde is seen through the overarching trees; there the church tower cheerily chimes the hours all through the year. Near at hand the ceaseless humming of the bees tells us summer is coming; while the faint fragrance of the wild flowers lends a peculiar charm to the spot.
